

“Swim Lane”

A group show featuring the artists

George Rahme, Lauren Rice, Ian Swanson and Graem Whyte

17 July – 14 August, 2010

Exhibition Public Reception: Saturday 17 July from 6 to 10pm

Background

The term “Swim Lane” can be used to describe parallel paths (through a body of water) or as a visual metaphor for mapping the complexity of modern life.

This show includes four highly individualistic Detroit area artists whose combined work could be seen as weaving in and out of both of these descriptions, sometimes seeming to originate from a common place, but rarely following recognizably similar routes, and speaking clearly of the present without ever resolving to a simple narrative.

Images

http://2739edwin.com/Rice_Breakin_Out_the_Good_China.jpg

http://2739edwin.com/Rice_la_luxe.jpg

http://2739edwin.com/swanson_writing_on_the_wall.jpg